

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A suspension fabric cabinet, comprised of a fabric cabinet and multiple locking strips and shelves; catches being respectively provided to each locking strip; each shelf being provided at its both sides an L-shape notch in relation to the catch of the locking strip; both of the front and the rear edges of the shelf being respectively folded up and overlapped to function as reinforced ribs to hold fast those locking strips to the inner edges of the cabinet at proper spacing; each shelf hooking with its notches onto the catch; one shelf (or two shelves) may be removed for changing the accommodation room to compromise the height of the objects for storage; and the reinforced ribs being capable of preventing the cabinet from deformation due to heavier load.